Road Trip Ireland 2026

Our Heritage Week road trip took us through some of Ireland's most remarkable historic estates. We began at Huntington Castle in Clonegal — a magnificent 17th-century fortress with walled gardens and a Brew for Two stop that delighted. From there, Gorey Masonic Lodge offered a rare glimpse into a beautifully preserved piece of local history. Burtown House Gardens in Kildare was a highlight — sweeping grounds, artisan crafts, and a sense of timeless elegance.

Continuing south, Wells House Gardens in Wexford delivered another Brew for Two moment — perfectly brewed coffee amid Victorian woodland walks.

Stradbally Hall in Laois impressed with its grand parkland and intimate estate atmosphere.

We wrapped up at Delta Sensory Gardens in Carlow, a truly unique and moving experience.

Six destinations. One unforgettable week. Heritage Ireland at its absolute finest — and every stop worth the detour.

When Heritage Week Goes Wrong

Not every Heritage Week stop goes to plan — and we're here to save you the trouble! Harristown House in Kildare was a stunning find on the itinerary, but be warned: it's cash only. No card reader in sight. We missed out entirely. Always carry cash for heritage sites off the beaten track. Borris House in Carlow was cancelled without notice — a real disappointment as it's one of the most striking Palladian mansions in Leinster. Always double-check listings the day before. Heritage Week schedules can change fast!

BREW FOR TWO RECOMMENDS

After a long day of heritage hopping, you deserve a great pit stop. Doyle's Parlour in Royal Oak is our top pick this season — a beautifully restored space with atmosphere in spades and excellent coffee. Also worth knowing: the Royal Oak food van operates weekends only, so time your visit right for a brilliant outdoor lunch between heritage stops. It's the kind of hidden gem that makes road tripping in Ireland so rewarding. These are the finds that make Heritage Week truly special — the stories no guidebook tells you.
